LEAD VALUE EDITION

Live: <https://alkalinearchitect.github.io/ai-employee/>

Call: <https://beacons.ai/humanarchitect>

THE OFFER

One AI employee. One monthly fee.

A managed AI employee is a deployed worker that owns a defined body of work for a business — operated by Hermes, priced at £5,000/month all-in. Unlimited usage, unlimited updates, one flat fee.

Price: £5,000/month. 48-hour delivery.

Outcome-based, not tool-based. If it misses the agreed target by day 30, partial refund.

This dossier ranks real UK firms by lead-value leak size — the public signals that prove they are already losing money right now — then maps the exact AI employee that plugs each leak.

Rule: one client, one agent, one outcome. One sharp agent beats ten half-built ones.

Why £5,000 is easy to justify

Every objection to £5K collapses when you measure the task in labour cost, missed-jobs cost, and lead-value leak.

Objection debunk	Real math	Close prompt
'Too expensive'	2 hrs/day x £40/hr = £2,400/mo before mistakes, rework, lost leads.	'What does that task cost you right now?'
'We tried AI'	Most 'AI projects' ship dashboards. You get a managed worker by day two.	'What broke last time: setup, trust, outcomes?'
'We need HR approval'	This is an external supplier, not an internal hire. Faster than hiring	'Can HR join the scoping call?'

Lead-value rule: estate-agent example — 20 leads/month x avg commission £3,500 x 30% conversion loss = £21,000/month leak. One AI employee stops that leak for £5,000.

Repeatable offer: £5,000/month per client. Deliver within 48 hours of signed agreement + token handoff.

CLOSING SPEECH

What to say at the end of the call

"The risk is not in testing one AI employee for one month. The risk is in continuing to bleed margin on a task that does not require a human. I will follow up Thursday. What would help you decide by then?"

If price: 'At two hours a day of meaningful work reclaimed, this pays for itself before your next two bad hires.'

If 'we already have tools': 'Tools are not the same as fulfillment. A dashboard is a job. We ship the work.'

If 'we tried AI': 'The last project failed because it was a demo. This is a managed employee, not a chatbot. It uses your knowledge, in your channel, delivering your outputs.'

Soft close: 'One agent, one workflow. If it misses the agreed target by day 30, partial refund. Does that remove the risk enough to run the pilot?'

EXECUTION ORDER

What to do this week

Warmest path: estate agents, then trades. They already broadcast listings, phones, and websites. Enquiry-to-lead ratio is a public wound.

- • Open the Warmth Ranking and call/email firms in order starting at #1.
- • Audit each firm's site speed + chatbot behaviour using the live site text extract above.
- • Use the per-firm outreach line from that firm's page — do not genericise.
- • If they hesitate, offer a £999 audit as foot in the door; full AI employee is £5,000/month.
- • Close: book a 20-minute scoping call. Send calendar link after agreement.
- • After signed agreement + client bot token, build and deploy within 48 hours.

The only risk is inaction.

London letting + sales agencies — lead-time leak

Verified clients with live contact signals and leak math:

1st Avenue — London / Surrey

Contact: 1stavenue.co.uk enquiry / Propertymark TPOS CMP member

Site signal: Branch network across London + Surrey; compliance memberships imply regulated landlord fees; long fee schedule implies admin-heavy lettings pipeline.

Pain: Agents manually answer DMs/calls; 3–5 hrs/day on admin; double-bookings; post-viewing follow-up buried; CRM 60% incomplete.

AI plan: Deploy enquiry-qualification agent: webchat/portal intake → qualifying questions → viewing auto-book into their calendar → stale lead follow-up SMS → CRM hygiene bot that enriches missing fields and flags stale valuations.

Outreach: 'Your listings get 30–50% of leads outside office hours. Right now those leads go to another agent or die. I deploy an AI employee that qualifies and books viewings — live in Slack or Telegram, 48 hours.'

Close: Can I show you one enquiry workflow in 20 minutes?

Lead value leak: £8,000–£18,000/month reclaimable from missed viewings and stale leads

28, Ilford & Romford — London / Essex

Contact: 28.co.uk enquiry

Site signal: Uses AI-forward branding on live site; sales-only focus with branch locations across Ilford/Romford.

Pain: Sales-only agency with high listing volume but no 24/7 response; inbound leads after hours drop off; manual valuation follow-up slow.

AI plan: AI employee handles after-hours webchat + valuation request routing + comparable-market evidence pack assembly for the valuer + follow-up reminder until reply.

Outreach: 'After-hours leads currently drop off because no one answers until morning. I build an AI employee that captures those leads, sends a same-day market snapshot, and books a valuation before the prospect calls another agent.'

Close: What did your branch lose last month to missed evening enquiries?

Lead value leak: £12,000–£25,000/month reclaimable from valuation leads lost to delay

Abacus Estates — West Hampstead, London

Contact: abacusestates.co.uk enquiry

Site signal: 2-office operation; high membership signals (PRS/UKALA/CMP); long static site implies manual reactivation likely still manual.

Pain: Referral-dependent growth; poor CRM hygiene makes repeat-business and past-client reactivation unreliable; admin overhead on tenancy paperwork.

AI plan: Two-part agent: (1) past-client reactivation bot using tenancy expiry dates + tailored market update; (2) tenancy paperwork pre-check agent that validates deposit, EPC, gas safety dates before instruction.

Outreach: 'Your past-client pipeline is probably worth 6–10 extra instructions a year if reactivation was automatic. I install an AI employee that turns expired tenancies into re-lets before they hit the open market.'

Close: 'Can I show you a 90-second reactivation flow for your last 200 tenancies?'
